THIS YEAR THE FAIR IS GOING TO “GO ALL OUT!”

Even though it is still over five months away, Central Washington State Fair organizers are well on their way to creating the next version of the annual 10-day event. With a whole new line-up of big name entertainment, some new foods and rides, and several other new attractions, organizers are going all out to put on another fantastic Fair.

And with their new theme “Go All Out!” they are hoping everyone who attends the Fair this year has the best time of their life and gets the most out of all the free entertainment, the exhibits and displays and all the other great food and fun that will be presented this year.

“We continue to work really hard to create a Fair that everyone is going to enjoy,” said Fair president and general manager Greg Stewart. “We want to present a family-fun event where everyone comes away with memories of having a really great time.”

Stewart said one of the new attractions this year will be “Bugology 1-oh-fun!” which will take up the entire Pioneer Hall Building with a number of live bug displays, interactive displays and exhibits all from the world of insects. Part of the exhibit will include a display where people can walk amongst live butterflies, and people will be able to try deep fried crickets and other edible insects.

Some entertainers have already been announced for this year’s Fair including new country artists Dan + Shay and High Valley. More entertainers will be announced in the coming weeks.
